 - 1. OPEC Chief Says Oil Price to Dent Tight-Oil Output: Falling oil prices could push half of U.S. tight-oil production out of the market, OPEC's secretary-general said, suggesting the group expects an end to a global oil glut that has driven oil prices down by 25% in recent months.
 - 2. Phillips 66 Profit More Than Doubles: Phillips 66's 3Q earnings more than doubled to $1.2 billion, or $2.09 a share, as its refining business swung to a profit on stronger margins and its chemical segment's profit continued to grow. Revenue fell 8.4% to $41.05 billion.
 - 3. Hess Results Improve On Higher Production, Asset Sales: Hess posted stronger-than-expected 3Q results of $1.01 billion, or $3.31 a share, on higher production and asset sales, although the exploration-and-production company said it was hit by lower crude oil prices.
 - 4. Norway's Oil Fund Posts Flat Returns in 3Q: Norway's oil fund, the world's biggest sovereign wealth fund, reported a 0.1% profit on its investments in the third quarter, as a loss on its equity investments was offset by a fixed-income gain.
 - 5. Southern Co. Posts 6.4% Revenue Increase: Southern Co.'s 3Q revenue rose 6.4% to $5.34 billion, helped by economic recovery in the Southeast, though earnings continue to take a hit from its Kemper County plant project.  - 6. WSJ Blog: Low Oil Price Slump Won't Hurt U.S.: Persistently low oil prices won't impact U.S. economic policy in any significant way, but they might force oil-reliant nations to become more cooperative, Treasury Secretary Lew said.
 - 7. THE WALL STREET JOURNAL: In Divided Ukraine, a Border Takes Shape: Even as President Petro Poroshenko solidifies power in Kiev following last weekend's parliamentary election, he has lost control over a swath of the country's east.
